COAL STRIKE IS CERTAIN

Miners Reject Peace Plan; U. S. Orders Seizure of Fuel; Maximum Price Restored

Indianapolis, Oct. 30.—An eleventh hour plea by Secretary of Labor Wilson to the soft coal miners to call off their strike was formally rejected today. Text of the Secretary's appeal was not made public. It was read at the mine officials' conference yesterday. Its rejection makes certain a strike by the miners on Saturday.

20 ADRIET AT SEAN DORIES

Fishermen From Boston Fleet
Lost on George's Banks
When Fog Blows In

Nearly a score of men were lost on Georges Bank last Tuesday in the thick fog and southwest gale which took heavy toll from the Boston fishing fleet, according to information received here today. Thirteen men were reported to have been lost from the schooner Reddie, which was last seen on the 24th. The Reddie was a 24-foot schooner, owned by J. H. Pomeroy, and was commanded by Captain Pomeroy. The Reddie was last seen on the 24th, and was reported to have been lost on the 25th. The Reddie was a 24-foot schooner, owned by J. H. which arrived today from Buenos Aires, reported speaking the Reddie yesterday, at which time she reported sixteen men lost in their dories. The Athens was reported to have one member of her crew missing, and the Elk two. The latter craft was also reported to have picked up men from other schooners. According to Captain Chetwood, a gale sprang up on the Banks and drove down so suddenly that much difficulty was encountered in picking up the boats. The missing men were all experienced fishermen, but little hope of their safety is held out.

MOTHER OF TWO IS MISSING FROM HOME

Lawrence, Oct. 30.—Mrs. Sebastian Trivino of No. 24 Middle street is missing, according to her husband who told the police she went away a week ago, leaving their two babies one aged four years and the other fourteen months. The missing wife was sixteen years old when the couple married about five years ago, and the husband was but two years older. Both have worked, he in a laboratory and she as a mill operative. Sebastian gave the police the name of a man who he thinks may know where the woman is.

THE DEAN MYSTERY

Dean Slain in Barn and Carried to Old Cistern

By BERT FORD.

Dr. William Kendrick Dean of East Jaffrey, N. H., was the victim of a gang murder.

The condition of his body and the way it was handled indicated that there were at least two men involved, and there is evidence pointing to the fact that three men went to the scene of the crime that night.

The finding of a bone hairpin near the cistern into which Dr. Dean's body was thrown hints that a woman may have been a witness to the tragedy.

It required two men to kill in the manner that Dr. Dean was slain and two men to gag, wash him and bind him as he was found by six feet of water, in a cistern that widened at the bottom much like an inkwell. One must have held the body in a cistern.

Facts of Bituminous Coal Miners' Strike

DATE—Strike called for Saturday, November 1.

DEMANDS—Sixty per cent increase in wages, a six-hour day and a thirty-hour week.

NUMBER OF MEN INVOLVED—500,000.

MINES TO BE CLOSED—1,666 in West Virginia and Ohio and more than double that number in Pennsylvania and other States.

RESOURCES—Operators claim that with a full supply of cars unorganized fields would produce more than 5,250,000 tons a month. Steel mills can operate for several weeks with the fuel stocks now on hand.

OLDEST PROVIDENCE

BUSINESS BLOCK BURNS

Providence, Oct. 29.—Fire swept through the basement and ground floors of the Arcade Building in the heart of the business district, causing damage estimated at $200,000. The building, the oldest business block in the city, was built of granite. Anderson Company, ready-made grocers, Jones & Co., dry goods, and Fairbanks Company, hardware, suffered the heaviest loss.

Following were the principal developments today by both sides for the gigantic struggle to be started Saturday, when the soft coal miners go on strike:

- 1—Seizure of coal now in transit was authorized by the railroad administration. Director-General Hines announced that he had ordered all regional directors of railroads to accumulate coal to meet the threatening crisis.
- 2—President's Cabinet decides that maximum coal prices shall be restored as one of the government's steps to meet the acute situation.
- 3—A sympathetic strike of hard coal miners may be expected in case of prosecution of officials of the United Mine Workers or government operation of the mines through the army, labor leaders declared.
- 4—The army is ready to take any action demanded of it, said Secretary Baker when asked if the War Department was prepared.
- 5—The entire Colorado National Guard is mobilizing and by midnight will be prepared to move to any point in the State where outbreaks may occur.
- 6—There is a two months' supply of coal for New England stored in Boston, Secretary Wilson said. Industries will be forced to reduce their production by 50 per cent, as there will be only sufficient production of coal for domestic purposes and the railroads, according to Secretary Lane.
- 7—An embargo on coal deliveries, more stringent

HINES ISSUES LIST OF COAL SUPPLY PRIORITIES

Washington, Oct. 30.—The following statement, authorizing the seizure by the government of coal in transit, was issued by Railroad Director Hines today:

In order to interfere as little as possible with the normal course of coal traffic, the railroad administration has for the present time been permitted to deal with the coal in transit as it is received. Within the last two weeks open top equipment has been directed to coal loading to the extent of all other types of traffic and the maximum production of coal. PRODUCTION IS HEAVY. The result has been an exceptionally large coal production. It is being necessary, however, to be prepared to handle against all temporary interruptions that the transportation system be protected, regional director Hines has directed to use that such national stock accumulate a necessary reserve of coal when it is not actually on hand and production is heavy.

WASHINGTON REPORTS OF OFFSETTING EFFECTS OF COAL STRIKE

LOOK FOR BLACK, HIGH OFFICIALS FEAR

Coal Strike More Deadly Than Attack of an Army, Says Pamer

“The proposed strike, if carried to its logical conclusion, will paralyze transportation and industry. It will deprive unnumbered thousands of men, who are making no complaint about their employment, of their right to earn a livelihood for themselves and their families; will put cities in darkness and, if continued only for a few days, will bring cold and hunger to millions of our people; if continued for a month, it will leave death and starvation in its wake. It would be a more deadly attack upon the life of the nation than an invading army.”—Attorney-General Palmer.

Maximum Coal Prices Will Be Restored to Meet Strike Situation

Washington, Oct. 30.—Maximum prices on coal will be restored as one of the steps of the government to meet the coal strike situation, Attorney-General Palmer announced this afternoon following a meeting of the President's Cabinet.

The Attorney-General, emerging from the Cabinet meeting, said: “The President will be asked to make an order controlling the transportation of coal, which will have the effect of restoring the maximum price.”

“Upon the making of that order the Fuel Administration will make such distribution as may be necessary to prevent any loss to the public and the distribution.”

Attorney-General Palmer stated that the government officials would wait until after the President's order before taking further action. He pointed out that the President will make the order of the Fuel Administration, and that it was expected that the President would make such an order.

The entire machinery of the Fuel Administration was put into operation, it was learned, but it is expected that it will be worked through the Fuel Administration and the Fuel Administration.

Use of Peace Treaty Means Elimination of State Guard as Military Body

Of even more importance to Boston than the disposition of the liquor treaty is the status of the State Guard, now on police duty, on that factor, says the strict letter of the law the State Guard passes out of existence with the ratification of the treaty.

The section of the National Peace Defense Act provides for the formation of any units in the State during war, but in time of peace stipulates that no other organization than the units of the National Guard will be recognized by the Federal government.

Colonel Samuel G. Shurtleff, chief of staff at army headquarters, said yesterday that Federal troops could handle any emergency.

ORDER PROBE OF JENKINS CASE TO GET FACTS

State Department to Find Out if Kidnaping Was Plot Against Mexico

By International News Service.
Washington, Oct. 29.—A thorough investigation of the circumstances of the kidnaping by Mexican bandits of William O. Jenkins, American consular agent, has been ordered by the State Department. Assistant Secretary of State Phillips announced today.

Matthew Hagan, assistant secretary of the American embassy at Mexico City, has been ordered to Puebla to investigate reports that the kidnaping of Jenkins was a conspiracy to discredit the Mexican government. He has been instructed to make a report on all of the circumstances of the case.

The State Department is without further advice as to the charges of a conspiracy in the kidnaping of Jenkins. It was announced.

FATHER FINED $20

For Employing Charge
Rejoice Canfanes, a Somerville fruit dealer, paid two fines of $10 each in court today for violation of the child labor law. Canfanes was found guilty of employing his own fifteen-year-old daughter, Reva, in his store more than eight hours a day and after six o'clock at night.

Try Making Your Own Cough Remedy

You can save about 50¢ and have a more reliable remedy than any made here. Ready done.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "cough-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple home-made cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, being either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Taste pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation has won prizes at the World's, State and County fairs. It is a cough and cold remedy of the highest quality. It loosens the phlegm, stops the cough, soothes the throat and soothes the inflamed membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough, and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and hemorrhoids there is nothing better. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and has been used for generations to break up severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "a bottle of Pinex with full directions, and don't accept anything else." Guarantees give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Inc., Wayne, Ind.—Advertisement

Finds Son, Gone 19 Years, by Picture in American

Through a clipping in the Boston American last summer, Harry B. Wakefield, an artist, discovered a long-lost son whom he had seen since the boy was an infant. This was brought out in testimony today before Judge Hamilton in the divorce action of the Suffolk Superior court, where Wakefield brought suit for divorce on a charge of desertion. He told the court that he had not seen his son from the time the boy was one year old, when Mrs. Wakefield alleged to have left the defendant and taken the child with her, until the latter, now about twenty, was located in a Summer camp. Wakefield testified that he saw the same Harry B. Wakefield, in the American, and that the boy was traced through Wakefield's attorney, Stanley Babson.

TWO SHOTS IN LIQUOR PAID IN NEW YORK

Federal Agent Whips Out Gun in Theatre District Saloon; Six Men Arrested

New York, Oct. 29.—Two men were shot and six arrests were made by agents of the U. S. revenue service during a raid in a saloon in the theatre district. The Federal agent, who was armed with a prohibition law, had scarcely entered the saloon when a "roughhouse" started.

One of the Federal agents whipped out a gun and started shooting. That stopped the brawl and when the smoke cleared away one man had a bullet in his leg and another had a scalp wound. They were arrested, together with the proprietors, the bartender and a chauffeur.

New York, being treated to a new feature of what prohibition is going to do to drink, for very serious venture to sell liquor even as strong as 275 beer and wine, it was declared, sold drinks to persons other than old recognized customers.

DECLINE TO ARREST MAN WHOSE TRUCK KILLED BOY

A warrant for the arrest of Max Cohen, driver of the auto truck which struck and killed ten-year-old Solomon, a Mohawk, of Prince street, North East, on the Warren bridge in Charlestown, was refused the police of Boston today. Cohen, who was arrested at the scene of the accident, was released on a $1000 bond.

Deserters Wound U. S. Agent

BUYING OF CAPE CANAL ADVISED BY GOETHALS

Panama Expert Saw Better Route for Coastal Shipping to New England

The government's decision to take over the Cape Cod Canal was inspired by the report of General George W. Goethals, builder of the Panama Canal, who as assistant chief of staff in 1915 made a study of the waterway.

This information was given to Judge Morton and a jury in the Federal Building today, by General Goethals, who was the most important witness in the resumed hearings to determine a route for the canal. The general stated that his knowledge of the waterway was based on his legal residence was on the island, to beginning his testimony he described his career as an army engineer. He said he was in command of two canals in the Tennessee River valley prior to the building of the Panama Canal.

General Goethals testified that part of his duties as assistant chief of staff of the army during the world war consisted of a study of Cape Cod as a means of bringing coal to New England. Previous to this he had studied the possibilities of a canal across the cape, when assigned to the engineer's office of New York in 1902.

In 1915 General Goethals said, with Admiral Benson, who with him had been instructed to study the canal, he made a trip through it, together with the shipping control committee. This trip was taken with a view to reporting on the advisability of government assuming ownership. Control of the canal had already been taken over as was required by the Railroad Administration.

WOMAN JUDGE SHOTS FIRED AT FEARS FOR $15 A WEEK GIRL IN AUTO

Says Latter Is in Peril of Temptation; Demands $20 Minimum Wage

By International News Service.
New York, Oct. 29.—No girl in New York can support herself on $15 or less a week and feel no temptation to cease "going straight," today declared Mrs. Jean Norris, lawyer, who next Monday takes the bench of the Women's Court, the first woman magistrate in this city.

Mrs. Norris, suffragist and writer, said the remedy was in the passage of minimum wage laws by the State. She advocated a minimum of $20 a week.

"Why do girls go wrong? That's a question society is now beginning to battle (their) seriously about," Mrs. Norris said. "The overwhelming majority of fallen girls blame society wages. Fifteen dollars a week is the lowest upon which any woman of girl can exist, and it is only the strongest character among them who earn this sum who can resist temptation. As for the girl without a penny and making less than $15 weekly, God help her."

Is the Chinese system of love-making the best?
This is the red-hot question unfolded on Boston by Dr. Ida Kahn, Chinese woman physician, convert to Christianity and advocate to a congress of missionary workers in this city.
Dr. Kahn is strong for the simple courting customs of her homeland. Among the benefits which will come to America, she says, with the adoption of Chinese marriage customs are the following:
Solution of the mother-in-law problem, as parents may not live with married children.
Disappearance of old maids, as the first maid is the bride's most ally in the first marriage.
A decrease in divorce and an increase in the birth rate.
Dr. Kahn admits that she has "reverted" something. If there's one thing that everybody feels contempt to talk about is the love-making.
The discussion is not as one-sided as one might think. There are not a few people who think that the good old way in which the father picks a bride for his son, has advantages.
Among the "pros" who have come the support of Dr. Kahn is Yeh Wah, the Mayor of Chinatown. Give up to Yeh.
"There are no old maids in China. All married people have large families. The parents of Chinese girls betroth them at the age of sixteen, like your men and women never 'walk out together' until they are married. Sometimes they are such other first when they are about to be married. American and English girls are spoiling the Chinese girls here. On returning to China they have too much independence. The reason Dr. Kahn didn't marry is probably that she came here too early and got wrong ideas of independence, so that today she calls herself the oldest old maid in China."
But there are plenty who oppose the Chinese idea as a relic of a bygone age.
Dr. Foster, a foreign missionary for the Baptist Church, takes very kindly to Dr. Kahn's suggestion regarding American and Chinese courtship and marriage customs. He has recently spent three years in China.
Mr. Foster said "Every Chinese father is a monarch in his own home. He keeps his eye out for a girl for his son and when the time comes simply says, 'Son, this is your wife.' The young man may never have known the young lady. A woman has no divorces in China because the women have no status. Chinese wives amount to little in their houses."

PROBE BOOKS OF LANDLORD FOR PROFITEERING

In a report of a campaign by the commission on the Nationalist of the United States...

London, Oct. 29.—"Settlement of peace with Turkey is delayed pending the decision by American and British officials whether to carry her part of the white man's burden," said Austin Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who delivered the leading speech in Parliament in the debate on the Lloyd George government's handling of the finances of the nation.

The greatest burden of the British nation," Chamberlain declared to be the question of Eastern questions, especially that of Turkey. The Chancellor made a warm defense of the government's policy and asserted that the general outlook was bright. He said that American conditions had already improved and were steadily growing better, so that there was no need for further taxation, which has been the nightmare of the British people, who already are bearing an almost intolerable burden and which has threatened the downfall of the government.

Tonight the government will decide whether the Lloyd George Government is to remain in office. The House of Commons will decide whether the Lloyd George Government is to remain in office. The House of Commons will decide whether the Lloyd George Government is to remain in office.

Tom Brown Leatherized

BOYS' ALL WOOL SUITS

Ages 7 to 17; $15 to $25

The ones you've heard so much about. Different, superior in wear, because of how, pockets, seals, knees are lined with soft, flexible, long-wearing chambray. Why? Because the wear in a boy's suit is due to made strain (like the stretching of knees and elbows) as well as outside knocks. Yet Leatherized is the first suit that recognizes this important fact. The chambray inside lining gives protection to both inside strain and outside knocks. You also get reinforced seams, extra mending cloth, extra buttons—all for same price as ordinary suits.

EVIDENCE POINTS TO TWO OR MORE SLAYERS IN DR. DEAN CASE

A BAZILLION PIZZLING CLUES

attending physician, while another man pulled the brain bag of hospital over the head and down to his waist. The bag was so small that it might fit Dean's shoulders. It was a tight fit.

DEAN KILLED IN BARN.

There is no doubt that Dr. Dean was killed in the barn and his body carried up to the stables. The distance of 20 feet. The stables is within 10 feet of the rear of the main house when the Dean resided to the stable.

Unless a person knew the premises well they could hardly locate the entrance to the barn with a lantern. From the barn, and the surface of the stables, close to the house, was not visible until almost reached the house. It is certain a full strip of ground skirting the building.

That fact and the fact that they knew Dr. Dean's habit of going to the barn to work, with other details, prove that the assassins were an organized party.

If Dr. Dean had lived until midnight he would have been in the barn at 11 o'clock, according to Mrs. Dean's statements to all who were on the premises on the morning after the tragedy, and those statements by the widow in the statement of the day, for one of the men, are consistently connected.

KILLED ABOUT 11:15 P. M.

They did not vary in any essential point. The authorities who tried to investigate her, ought to bear this feature in mind.

The examination showed that the milk which Dr. Dean had drunk was from the barn. The milk was from the village that night had been given to the stables, but the curd had not.

It is difficult to fix the time by the condition of stomach contents, but it would appear that Dr. Dean was killed about 11:15, and that he was killed earlier than Mr. and Mrs. Dean claimed to have been.

Rich claimed to have been in the vicinity of 11 o'clock or soon after, as Mrs. Dean claimed. She insisted that he came home about 11 o'clock while living with Dr. Dean after the tragedy for a year before her death.

At any rate, an automobile which was unquestionably the death of Dean was returning to the village at midnight. It was a bright light.

It is curious that the murderer fifteen minutes to dispose of the body and thirty minutes to reach the village which would have reached in less time. Dr. Dean lived with Mrs. Dean in the house of death more than an hour.

WORKED AT LATE HOURS.

There are phases which indicate that the murderer had time to work at their leisure, which would tend to support the theory that Dr. Dean, returned from the village earlier than generally supposed.

Examination of the stables showed, in the opinion of farmers, that she had been in the stables the night before, but Dr. Dean's stables with all which Mrs. Dean saw him take with the lantern to the barn that night was never found.

At the time certain local officials were more than hunting the murderer. More than that the murderer was not in the barn that night and everything indicates that he was not in the barn that night.

It was an organized party. The murderer had been in the barn that night and everything indicates that he was not in the barn that night.

It was also wrong of the authorities to permit Dr. Dean to remain in the town postmaster, to stand up the barn that day. Henry J. Hennessey, assistant cashier of the local bank of which Charles L. Dean is cashier.

The cleaning of the barn, the stables and the stables, the stables of the citizens of Dr. Dean's family, who had a garage and a stable.

smith shop near the railroad station, the Federal authorities found a footprint of blood on the barn floor which he sawed out for them as an exhibit later on. Government agents used flammable automobiles a great deal.

There were small handprints on the barn floor and larger ones on the grass, indicating that the assassins had been there. The grass was a light green, the murderers probably found that dripping would be absorbed by the soil and be less likely to show. But there was not a drop of blood anywhere.

STRIKE ON TEMPLE.

Dr. Dean was struck on the left temple by an implement which left three marks, triangular in shape. It is thought that before that Dr. Dean was struck on the temple with a stone or a brick. He was not able to defend himself, because he had sufficient spirit and agility. It is thought that he struck one of the assassins with the stone.

The blow from the weapon used, however, was not sufficient to cause death. The murderer then used a knife to cut the throat of Dr. Dean. The wound was a deep one, and it was fatal.

HOTEL ARGONNE TO BE OPENED BY 'SALLIES'

Tomorrow afternoon, the Salvation Army will open its new hotel, the name of which will remind thousands of overseas veterans of the work done by the organization in France. The hotel is called the Argonne, and was the old Hotel Bedford on Bedford street.

The building has been renovated and now has 240 rooms. Chief among the innovations is the "Mother's Room," a beautifully fitted and furnished parlor where service men may meet their mothers. The room is so arranged that there is every opportunity for the privacy.

There are several game rooms, a cafeteria and a temperance bar. The formal opening will be at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon and the hotel will be open for inspection until 5 o'clock.

Colonel Clifford will preside, and among the prominent men who will attend are: Mayor Peters and the City Council, Major-General Edwards, Admiral Robertson, Brigadier-General Cole, Colonel General Logan, Colonel William Kenville, John McMonahan, Captain Lyman Hollister and many others.

One of the leaders in this movement is the Dodge Brothers' organization in Detroit, one of the largest shipbuilders in the industry.

Dr. Dean, although always muscular, did not weigh more than 135 or 140 pounds. He was 5 feet 6 inches in height. With the 27½-pound body weight would total upward of 140 pounds, although he weighs for the blanket and his light summer clothing.

Mrs. Dean, who weighed little more than 110, and who had been falling steadily mentally and physically for two years or more, would have had great difficulty dragging the body unaided to the cistern.

But the bricks forming the bulk of the cistern, which had become loosened by age and the elements, were in place. This showed that the body, with its anchorage, had been carefully lifted and dropped in. Had a frail woman of the advanced age of Mrs. Dean taken this attempt to throw the body in, the disfigured mummy would have been found in it.

GAMBLER ADMITS RECEIVING OFFER TO 'BUY' WORLD SERIES

By W. S. Farnsworth
New York, Oct. 30.—Baseball fans will be shocked to learn of a plan to bribe a man connected with the Chicago White Sox in the recent World's Series which was captured by the Cincinnati Reds.

The American learned yesterday that Arnold Rothstein, the well-known gambler, was approached and informed that for $20,000 he could clean up a fortune by watering on the National League players. The alleged scheme was to "buy" a party who would see that the White Sox were defeated.

The American also learned that two telegrams were sent to a former champion fighter in Cincinnati from New York the day before the series opened, which were signed "A. R. Rothstein's initials."

Rothstein, when confronted with this evidence declared that he had been approached by this former fighter, but insisted that he spurned the offer.

"I have heard rumors that I was mixed up in such a deal," Rothstein said, "but it is a lie. I do not want to be called a 'conner' but I feel that it is time for me to make these reports and protect my reputation."

LONG DISTANCE PHONE CALL
A few days before the series opened a man did come to me and say that he could buy a certain party for $25,000, who would see that the White Sox would lose.

"I replied to him as follows: 'Get away from me, you fat, I don't believe you can do any such thing, and even if you could I don't want anything to do with it.'"

"The man, however, was persistent and said: 'I am going to Cincinnati and if everything is as you say, I will send you a telegram.'"

"Again I told the man a fat and said I did not wish to be mixed up in such a thing. He then said: 'I will send you a telegram in two days.'"

"A few days later I received a telegram from the man, which said: 'I have heard that you are a gambler. I want to see you. I will send you a telegram in two days.'"

"I replied to him as follows: 'Get away from me, you fat, I don't believe you can do any such thing, and even if you could I don't want anything to do with it.'"

High Heels and Low Sinks

They Are Both Bad for the Women Who Use Them

Copyright, 1919, Hearst Company.

There are two things responsible for more pain and distress for American women than all other causes put together.

They are HIGH HEELS and LOW SINKS.

Either one of these subjects is sufficient for an editorial, but since medical men are just at present calling attention to the evil of high heels we will talk about them today, and about the evil of the low kitchen sink some other time.

In the meantime, the men who read this ought to see today that the sinks in their kitchens are made the right height to work at with comfort.

According to the Government's statistics, more than 62 per cent. of the men examined for army service suffered from some form of foot trouble. Many of them were so seriously affected that they were refused for service.

The best authorities estimate that more than 90 per cent. of American women suffer from troubles directly attributable to wearing high heels.

The American woman is generally supposed to be particularly subject to nervous disorders.

Nervousness is the national disease.

The very great majority of nervous troubles is directly attributable to the efforts of women to balance themselves nine-tenths of the time that they are walking on one heel and one big toe.

Nine-tenths of the time that we are walking we carry the weight of our bodies on one foot.

There is only a very small part of a step when both feet bear weight.

Nature intended that when we stepped pressure should come at three points—the ball of the foot, back of the big toe, the portion of the foot just back of the little toe and at the heel.

No other animal but man has attempted to improve on nature. The woman wearing the fashionable, long-toed, narrow-soled, high-heeled shoe tries to walk with her foot touching at only two points instead of three.

You have seen a three-legged milking stool. You know how firmly it sits on the floor and supports you.

Suppose you cut off one of the legs, do you think you could sit on it comfortably?

Of course after long practice you would be able to balance yourself.

It is just the same with the high-heeled shoe.

No woman ever walks comfortably or easily or safely the first time she tries to walk around with her heels two or three inches above her toes.

It tires her. It makes her legs and her back and her head ache, and she feels generally miserable.

It is only because she persists in practice that she ever gets so she can walk with any comfort and that comfort is at the cost of abnormal physical changes which are the direct cause of a great variety of troubles.

What would you think of a man who put shoes on a horse with pieces of iron attached that made the back part of the horse's foot two inches higher than the front?

Do you think that horse would be able to pull any load or travel very fast without falling down, or be able even to stand still without a good deal of discomfort?

The high-heeled shoe is a combination relic of the barbarism of China and the silly vanity of a French King. It is one of the results of the practice of foot binding that for centuries one of the most hideous and painful of human customs.

The Chinese woman with the foot of a child could not walk about in rainy weather without wetting the bandages which confined her feet.

To protect them a shoe on stilts was devised.

At the toe and at the heel was fastened high blocks of wood, and these blocks kept her feet clear of the mud and water.

There was a French ruler—a little, undersized, unimpressive man who wanted to be tall and kingly in appearance, so he took the idea of the Chinese rainy day sandal, and as the two blocks made it perfectly impossible that he was trying to make himself taller, he eliminated the front one, and with his heels high in the air walked round on his toes for the rest of his career.

Women who were just as silly and perhaps as short or shorter than the king adopted the style, and since then French heels have been both fashionable, foolish and uncomfortable.

The western adaptation had not even the virtue of the utility of the Chinese custom, for it does not protect the foot from the mud and water.

If you want to see some of the things that a high-heeled shoe accomplishes, compare the foot of a woman who has worn one to the foot of a baby and see the difference between the broad, substantial foundation which the little one has is step on and the bunched-up toes, broken arch and generally distorted arrangement on which the average woman gets about.

Then you will know why most women say: "I know I ought to take exercise, but it just kills me to walk."

The good Lord who made women did not intend them to be bound up in iron corsets nor to walk around on their toes. Nobody can do it without paying the cost in ill health and distorted bodies, and a natural body and good health constitute real beauty.

Don't think you look more attractive with a pinched-up waist and a wabbling about on high heels, because you really do not.

BUSINESS AND FLIM-FLAM

In your thoughts for adding to your income, does your mind run along honest, legitimate methods, or are you wondering how you can get the best of some other man or woman?

How often do you plan additional income by fair and square means? When you have on some sort of shady deal in your desire to make money, do you not try to square yourself with your conscience by the argument to yourself that you are contemplating something that is often done?

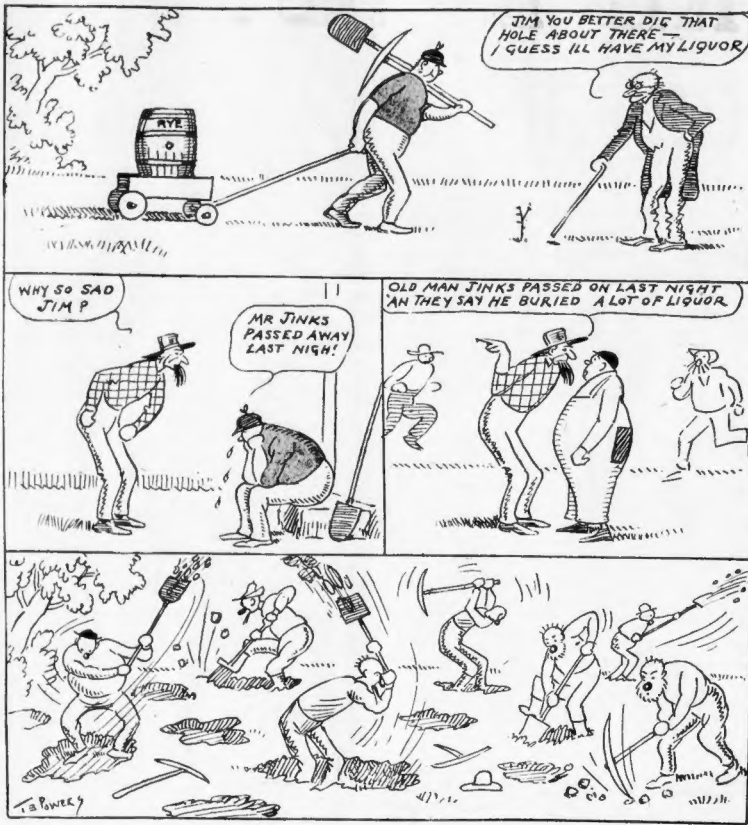

You might just as well pick a man's pockets as to cheat him in the drive ways that some men call "making money."

When you plan this sort of thing, you are taking advantage of another man's goods without giving value, true and just in return, you are a thief. There are many ways of cheating, but in all you figure as a common thief.

This does not mean to convey the impression that because another man for some reason does not see, or care, to make his possessions valuable in the way you would and hence leave them at a price enabling you to make some money, that you are doing wrong to take that advantage. The game is the one you should steer clear of.

More Truth Than Poetry

Pa Seems to Have a Brain Lesion

By S. E. KISER

PA bought himself a derby hat and brought it home last night. And ma can't keep from thinkin' that our future won't be bright. He paid nine dollars for the thing; when ma found out the price she seemed to think she ought to ring the doctor for advice. "Good gracious, pa," she said, "what made you ever buy that kind? There must be something, I'm afraid, that's overthrown your mind."

BUT there was worse than that to come; pa bought an overcoat. It almost seemed to strike ma dumb; a gasp stuck in her throat—

I mean when pa told what it cost—she soaked him fifty bucks.

Ma said: "I guess his reason's lost; his mind's all drakes and ducks." And then she went and felt pa's head and ast him if it hurt. "Git ready now to faint," pa said; "I also bought a shirt."

HE suiled a kind of sickly smile that chased ma's fears away. "I hope," she told him, after while, "that's all you bought today. Because I did some shoppin', too—a Winter coat and hat—both bargains that but very few would ever get them at. The hat was thirty-five, but all I paid was twenty-nine. I've got it out here in the hall; I hope you'll think it's fine."

"THE coat's a beauty; you'll be glad I picked it out, I know. It's something like the one I had last Fall a year ago. You never guess the price I paid—two hundred and eighty-eight."

It looks as though it had been made to order for a queen. You're glad I got them, ain't you, dear? Come on, cheer up and smile;

The coat'll do me for next year—unless they change the style."

THEN pa said that he'd bought some shoes—ten dollars for a pair.

Ma nearly fainted at the news; it drove her to despair. "Why, pa!" she hollered, "land alive! Has something cracked your dome?"

It looks as if you wished to drive us out of house and home! Pa put his fingers in his ears and moaned a sickly moan; Ma's worried, for she says she fears his reason's overthrown.

Arthur Somers Roche's Latest a Thriller

HIS was a tramp, down on his luck. All day long he had been trying to earn the three cents necessary to carry him across the ferry to the eastern side of the river, where freight cars galore waited to carry him eastward.

Then, as he waited in the darkness for a chance to slip unseen into the railroad yards, the stranger approached, pressed into his hand a fabulous sum of money, pointed out a beautiful girl at the future wife of the ragged knight of fortune, and departed into the night.

Gerald Magee then and there entered upon a new era. He entered at the same time a maze of devious, mysterious happenings which were to lead him

This is a resume of the opening paragraphs of Arthur Somers Roche's latest and greatest story, "The Best of Luck," which begins on Sunday in the magazine section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser. The author of "In the Dark," "The Gray Hair," and other fiction tales of note has produced in "The Best of Luck" one of the most interesting stories of the year.

"The Best of Luck" next Sunday in the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Supporters of the birth control movement have argued in the past that the bearing of several children is more than likely to shorten the life of a mother.

And now appear scientists who declare unequivocally that nature, far from punishing motherhood, gives to the mother a longer span of days, longer youth and better health, all things being equal, than her childless sister.

Dr. Caper L. Redfield of Chicago, one of the most brilliant medical men in America, has written for the Medical Times a scientific explanation of this fact. His article appears in the coming Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The American Master-Criminal trains his workers young. Children of school age, has discovered, are actually studying in classrooms fitted out by the agents of the "organization," learning how to "beat the system" of the great department stores in which they are employed as cash girls.

This week's installment of the Boston Sunday Advertiser's exposure of the workings of the desperado of crime is one of the most interesting of the year.

Government Insurance

By MAJOR THOMAS J. JOHNSTON, U. S. A.

MORE than 90 per cent. of the United States soldiers, sailors and marines who served during the World War applied for Government War Risk Insurance. The country's obligation to these men did not cease when they received their discharges. The government is making every effort to induce these men to continue their insurance.

They may continue their present term insurance until the expiration of five years after the President declares the emergency over. Conversion to other forms of government insurance may be applied for now or at any time during the five-year period. The government is to remain permanently in the insurance business for the benefit of those who served their country. Ex-service men who have permitted their insurance to lapse may now be reinstated under very liberal terms. Lapsed premiums for only two months need be paid. Legislation has been submitted to Congress with a view to increasing the permitted classes of beneficiaries and authorizing the payment of death benefits in both lump sum and extended period plan.

The government intends to open branch offices in each State. No argument is needed to show you that government insurance was a good thing before. If it was good during the war, it is good now. DON'T PAID INSURANCE. KEEP UP YOUR INSURANCE.

MYSTERY OF MAGNETISM IS MADE PLAIN

By Garrett P. Serviss

AN observant reader in Illinois says: "I have noticed that when filing a piece of iron or steel in zero weather it acts as a magnet. The filings adhere and arrange themselves as if attracted by a permanent or electro magnet, and the colder the atmosphere the stronger the magnetism." This leads him to suggest that "it is the intense cold at the earth's poles that causes magnetism."

"Dear Mr. Woodrow," he writes, "I often read your articles, and liking the opinions you express, it occurs to me that perhaps you can satisfactorily solve a problem which confronts me. You no doubt are used to reading about other people's troubles, and I hope this won't bore you. I would like to know what proportion of one's salary do you think should be turned in at home for the support of the family each week."

Works Extra Time
"I am a lay, nineteen years of age, and receive a moderate salary. My parents insist that I give practically all of it to help pay home expenses. In fact, I keep out just enough money to cover my carfare and lunches for the following week."

"In addition to my day work I have also secured a job in the evenings, and work is it until four or five hours after leaving my day position. 'Out of the money I earn in this way my parents believe that I should buy my own clothes; so I put it all at the bank. I usually have no money left, although I work far more than the average young man. And because I am unable to save anything on account of this constant expense, I have become dissatisfied with my health is suffering as a result of it."

"While there are several members of our family that have to be supported, my father makes a good salary; and, although I am willing to do my share, really I feel that I am not allowed to keep enough of my salary to relieve me from the necessity of working."

But as he states the case, there is nothing to warrant such conclusions. These parents seem to think that their children should be cared for in childhood and have given them a good education he is bound to repay them by turning back all that he earns. It seems a generous rate of interest on parental duty.

He is evidently no shirker. From his letter I gather that he is intelligent, hard-working and willing to do his part. But what is his part? Unless the family is in desperate need it certainly should not be every cent he makes.

A Good Business Property
His parents appear to look upon him as a good business property; but if you have a son who does not take every cent it yields and spend it on other things, you put a good deal of it back on him, keeping it up and developing it so that it will produce still more. These parents consider themselves of a very short-sighted policy.

They fail to see that their really investing themselves as much as they are. They are literally throwing their money away. Instead of continually harping on the custom strain, he should matter what he does he can never repay them, some basis of understanding might be established.

Since he is contributing practically all that he can make to the family exchequer, it is only fair that he have a thorough knowledge of how the money is spent and an exact statement of the family expenses.

If these can be produced, it should be done. In fact, every effort should be made to encourage him to broaden his ambition and help him get into the field of wider opportunities. In order to achieve anything, we have got to have a fairly free hand.

THE CHILD A VICTIM OF GRASPING PARENTS

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

WE sometimes see parents who are the victims of their children, and again, children who are the victims of their parents. The extremes of either case are tragic.

I have received a letter from a boy who, under much family pressure, has become bewildered in that maze which confronts most of us at one time or another—how much do I owe to myself, and how much do I owe to others?

"Dear Mrs. Woodrow," he writes, "I often read your articles, and liking the opinions you express, it occurs to me that perhaps you can satisfactorily solve a problem which confronts me. You no doubt are used to reading about other people's troubles, and I hope this won't bore you. I would like to know what proportion of one's salary do you think should be turned in at home for the support of the family each week."

Works Extra Time
"I am a lay, nineteen years of age, and receive a moderate salary. My parents insist that I give practically all of it to help pay home expenses. In fact, I keep out just enough money to cover my carfare and lunches for the following week."

"In addition to my day work I have also secured a job in the evenings, and work is it until four or five hours after leaving my day position. 'Out of the money I earn in this way my parents believe that I should buy my own clothes; so I put it all at the bank. I usually have no money left, although I work far more than the average young man. And because I am unable to save anything on account of this constant expense, I have become dissatisfied with my health is suffering as a result of it."

"While there are several members of our family that have to be supported, my father makes a good salary; and, although I am willing to do my share, really I feel that I am not allowed to keep enough of my salary to relieve me from the necessity of working."

"My parents have given me a good education and believe that I should pay them back, although they say that, no matter how much money I earn, I will never be able to repay them for all they have done for me."

Cannot Grasp Opportunity

"At the present time I will never be able to save any money or be in a position to grasp a favorable opportunity when it comes along, as with every increase of salary I receive my parents expect a large share of it."

"Won't you please write an article on this subject at an early date, and make some suggestions that will be of help to me? Also, please say whether or not my parents are right in their ideas, or if I am just selfish?" J. G.
